Dakota Apartments, New York

Museum of the City of New York

①

DAKOTA APARTMENTS (1)

New York, New York
Photo credit: Museum of the City of New York
Photo description: facade - old photo

Dakota Apartments, New York, New York Photo: Historic American Buildings Survey

DAKOTA APARTMENTS (2)

New York, New York
Photo credit: HABS
Photo description: Facade

(

Dakota Apartments, New York, New York Photo: Historic American Buildings Survey

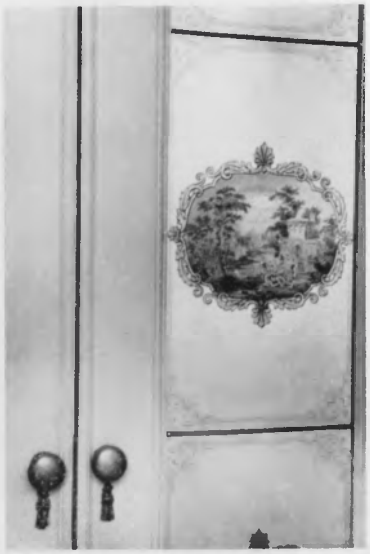
DAKOTA APARTMENTS (3)

New York, New York
Photo credit: HABS
Photo description: Detail of door

Dakota Apartments, New York

Museum of the City of New York

New York, New York
Photo credit: Museum of the City of New York
Photo description: Stairway in first floor public hall.



A classic column replaces bearing partitions in the building's largest drawing room (24 feet by 49 feet). This room is in the apartment of publisher C. D. Jackson. Ceilings are 15½ feet high on the first floor diminishing to 12 feet on the eighth. Original detailing, such as the plaster ceiling (right) is in immaculate condition. Above, right, is a detail of one of the laminated sliding doors, showing an original glass insert.

New York, New York
Photo credit: Museum of the City of New York
Photo description: Interior details: column, glass insert on laminated sliding door, plaster ceiling detail.